

Through the first semester, May got used to the life abroad and she doesn't feel homesick anymore, because she managed to stay a close relationship with her family. She lived through the accident, took care of herself, and learned to grow up and become independent.

She's ready to live a confident live, because she knows that family's love never changes no matter where she is.

Finish

Though the first semester, May got used to the life abroad and she doesn't feel home sick any more, because she managed to stay a close relationship with her family. She lived through the accident, took care of herself, and learned to grow up and become independent.

changes no matter where she is.

She's ready to live a confident life, because she knows that family's love never

Finis

